ST. ELIZABETH of HUNGARY – November 19 in Hungary, November 17 in the rest of the Church since 1970

She was born in 1207, probably in Pressburg/Bratislava/Pozsony to Andrew II of the house of Árpád, king of Hungary, and his wife Gertrude of the house of Andechs-Meran (there were many German principalities, some of them quite small). Her mother's sister was St. Hedvig, wife of Heinrich I of Silesia.
"In 1211 a formal embassy was sent by Landgrave (a particular type of ruler) Hermann I of Thuringia (another German state) to Hungary to arrange, as was customary in that age, a marriage between his eldest son Hermann and Elizabeth who was then four years old." The court of Thuringia was at this period famous for its magnificence. Elizabeth was brought up there. The prince whom Elizabeth was to marry died, so she was betrothed to his brother Ludwig/Louis, who in 1221 succeeded his father as Ludwig IV. In the same year Ludwig and Elizabeth married. They were happy and had three children. Before the third was born Ludwig set out on a crusade but on September 11, 1227, died of the plague in Otranto, Italy. In 1221, the newly founded Franciscans had arrived in Germany and the ideals of St. Francis strongly appealed to Elizabeth. Her uncle, the bishop of Bamberg, wanted her to re-marry, but she refused. She devoted herself to the care of the sick and died in 1231.

NEXT SUNDAY is the Solemnity of CHRIST THE KING. It is the last Sunday of the Church's year. The following Sunday, November 29, will be the First Sunday of Advent.
